About UMSOD

Students Rebuild Smiles, Restore Confidence

January 27, 2015 | By Adam Zewe

A healthy smile can help someone achieve success. The students who volunteer with the “Smiles for Success” program see that success firsthand. They provide dental treatment for women who are working to rebuild their lives and re-enter the workforce.

The University of Maryland School of Dentistry (UMSOD) was the first dental school in the nation to host a student-based program of Smiles for Success, an outreach effort launched in 2005 by the American Association of Women Dentists. The program provides free dental treatment for women who are struggling to re-enter the workforce after suffering abuse, addiction or financial hardship. “These women have really been crippled by their dentition. It’s rewarding to see the change in the patients, how their whole demeanor improves when they receive treatment,” says Associate Professor Mary Beth Aichelmann-Reidy, DDS, who serves as director of the dental school programs at the Smiles for Success Foundation. Reidy launched the Smiles for Success program at UMSOD in 2009 with student leaders Sarah Raymond, DDS ’10, Sara Kramer, DDS ’10 and Dorie Frank, DDS ’10.

The Smiles for Success patients face financial challenges as they complete job training programs. In many cases, government assistance does not pay for the restorative dental treatments they need. After being accepted into the Smiles for Success program, the women receive comprehensive dental treatment at UMSOD from teams of third- and fourth-year dental student volunteers. Beyond short-term care, the students teach patients about dental hygiene so they are better able to maintain their oral health after they gain employment.

The students also learn valuable lessons. Leah Romay, DDS ’16, has developed stronger skills in periodontics by volunteering with Smiles for Success. “I’ve also learned about the importance of the dentist-patient relationship,” she says. “These women are entering the workforce again. We, as dental care providers, can give them confidence in their smile and in themselves.”

For Maricris Mangasi, DDS ’15, watching the women progress is extremely rewarding. When the patients first begin treatment, it can be challenging to gain their trust, she says. “At the end, when you’ve finished their treatment plan, they feel new and ready to go out and get a job,” she says. “It’s great to feel like I’m part of that progress.”

President's Message

The year is truly flying by. We started 2015 with a change in management. Debbie Gidley, who has been our director for the past twelve years, has stepped down from the position February 28. We wish her the best in her future endeavors. The Executive Board has decided to self-manage AAWD for the next fifteen months. We will focus on seeking a new management team, starting next summer. The entire board will be here for you! We are creating a more robust website and membership opportunities. Please send us your local and student chapter updates for our website and social media platforms. We have an amazing Annual Session, "Women Dentists Take the Lead", spearheaded by Dr. Mary Martin, which will occur during the ADA meeting in Washington DC. We are creating more avenues of corporate engagement to connect our members, the decision makers and thought leaders of the future of dentistry. The future is bright!

We are excited with the new direction that AAWD is forging. AAWD is many things to many people. We recently codified a five-year strategic plan that spotlighted our four visions: Advocacy, Community, Leadership and Membership. Advocacy allows for women dentists touch points to the world. Be it lobbying Congress or discussing the benefits of daily brushing, we are always advocating for oral health. Community is our organizations face. You may know it as our website or Chronicle, but it also includes networking and our archives. All women dentists have a community aspect. One of the things we do best is networking. We, as women professionals, are the face of dentistry. With women being over fifty percent of graduating seniors, the world will soon be seeing more of the community of women dental leaders. Leadership spotlights our Board of Directors as well as our mentorship. Women dentists love to be mentors. One of the great things about being a member of AAWD is the ability to mentor other women, from new graduates to those enjoying life after clinical dentistry. It works both ways: we can all learn from each other and we are all willing to share. Membership is all about you, our stakeholders, who are an integral part of this organization. We are committed to our members, all of our members, be it students, practicing dentists, dentists serving in any of our federal services, educators, corporate partners or retirees.

So, what is AAWD? We are a diverse group of women working in all areas of dentistry. We are the new norm of dentistry. We are here to connect all generations of women, serving as a bridge to improve overall health and personal life. We want you to create your opportunity with AAWD. We are the American Association of Women Dentist, representing the fastest growing segment in dentistry. We educate, connect, and empower women dentists at all stages of their careers. We offer our support in development of evidence based products and product awareness. We seek partnerships in offering educational opportunities and mentoring future leaders and dental students. Together, our influence, combined with our stakeholder's resources, will advance and affect the women's dental community. Every woman's story is different. Those stories help to create a beautiful balanced mosaic of our lives. If you know a woman who is not currently a member, ask her to join the fastest growing group in dentistry: AAWD. Together, we will create the future of the new norm of the practice of dentistry.

Smiles for Success

The Smiles for Success program offers cost-free dental care for women graduates of accredited job readiness and placement programs, thus helping those who are helping themselves. The dental care offered is meant to be a short-term solution for those who need treatment as they move from public assistance to the working world. A beautiful smile is truly an asset when interviewing for a job. Many women are self-conscious and embarrassed as they attempt to hide decayed, missing and damaged teeth on job interviews.

Smiles for Success provides an opportunity for the dental community to effectively assist women in reaching their goal to obtain employment by giving them a competitive edge in the job market by enhancing their appearance and self-esteem.

Volunteer dentists around the country participate by helping to restore oral health and a confident smile.

AAWD's Exquisite Heritage

From the Director of Archives

Dr. Mary Licking

It is not highly publicized, but you may have noticed anyway. Over the last thirty years or so, there have been a number of lectures at the Chicago Dental Society (CDS) Midwinter Meeting (MWM) provided under the AAWD banner. CDS provides the opportunity for AAWD to provide a speaker to be featured on the scientific program, and AAWD has a tradition of taking advantage of that opportunity. Members of AAWD have come forward to give these without receiving speaking fees or remuneration from CDS for time and travel. As we highlight various activities of our organization during the years leading up to the AAWD 100th anniversary (AAWD was founded in 1921) this is an opportunity to look back on this special CDS MWM and AAWD relationship.

At the 2015 CDS MWM, Dr. Tawana Lee-Ware [President, 2014] spoke under the AAWD banner on "Mom: The New Pediatric Patient," to a sold out audience. Others who have taken advantage of this opportunity include a number of AAWD members and Dr. Margaret Scarlett [President, 2002], Dr. Rise' Martin [President, 2003], Dr. Jean Furuyama [President, 2004], Dr. Stephanie Houseman [President, 2009], Dr. Laura Murcko [President, 2010] and presenting two times was Dr. Mary Beth Aichelmann-Reidy [President, 2013]. Dr. Mary Hayes, a past AAWD Board member, gave a scientific lecture in the 1980's for an MWM Visiting Women Dentists Reception at the request of CDS, and this as well as addresses by other AAWD members in that setting may have helped germinate the relationship. The topics included but were not limited to: pediatric dentistry, orthodontics for the general dentist, leadership, periodontics, general dentist communication with periodontists, and caries assessment. I interviewed a number of AAWD members who spoke under the AAWD banner at CDS MWM. The result was an article too lengthy for this space. I am exploring putting it on the AAWD blog, and then others who have contributions on this topic can post them in response or just post them anyway. I encourage postings, because I realize I did not interview all who have been a part of this valuable relationship. Meanwhile, for more information, or to obtain a copy of the article I wrote, it is ok to contact me directly or through the editor (contact information is posted on the AAWD website, or should be).

Dr. Doniger Inspires Louisville Dental Students: Oh The Places You'll Go

by Puja Sangoi, ULSD AAWD President

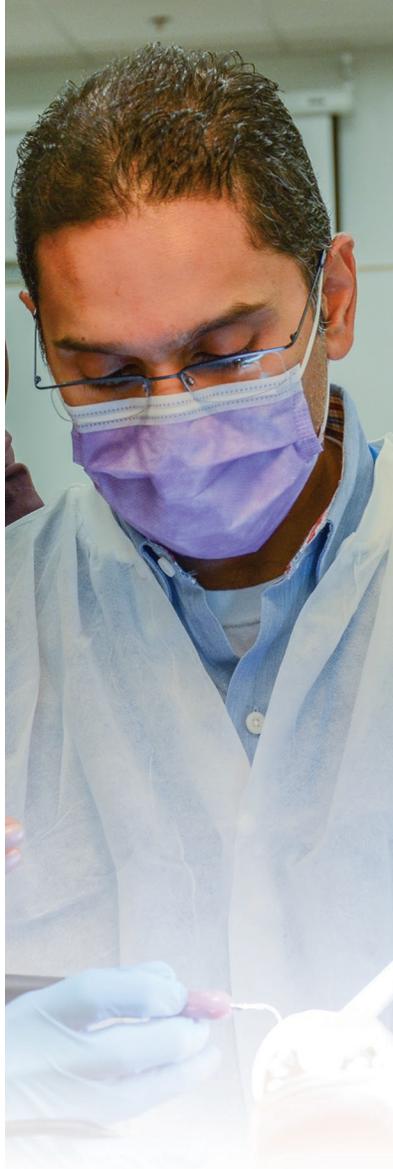

In March, the University of Louisville School of Dentistry's AAWD student chapter was honored to host national AAWD president: Dr. Sheri Doniger. It is not often that student-run chapters are opportune with the presence of such prominent leaders, which truly proved to be a treat for aspiring female dentists of the organization. First, second, third, and fourth year dental students of AAWD at ULSD gathered to hear Dr. Doniger speak. The topic of her presentation was "Oh The Place You'll Go – Dr. Seuss" in which she motivated dental students to explore a variety of options in and out of the dental field. She talked about her experiences of being a dental assistant, hygienist, dentist, dental faculty, dental program director, high school board officer, library board, website blogger, writer, journal editor, and leadership within AAWD. Her endeavors and successes in climbing the ladder reminded students of the popular rap song "started from the bottom." She stressed to the students to continue to push themselves and explore different outlets in dental field and community, which will help them thrive. "I was inspired by how many diverse things Dr. Doniger is involved in. It made me feel better about my future and feel like I can do anything," said student Claire Vanlandingham. Dr. Doniger spoke about how drastically different life was as a female dental student just a few decades ago and how much we have progressed as a profession. She expressed that the numbers of graduating female dentists have changed; however, the equipment used in the dental field hasn't changed much at all in the past 50 years. The anesthesia syringes are too big to fit into smaller (female) hands and restorative materials such as composite need to be deposited from more female-friendly easier to use vessels. Her presentation expressed to students the importance of how AAWD can help members with networking, mentorship, leadership, and staying connected throughout lifetime. Her presentation was followed by an informal question answer session in which the students felt at ease and relatable with the president. "I found myself thinking about many things she said to us all weekend long. She touched upon many subjects that I have thought about before and explained her position so eloquently," said student Emily Johnson. The Louisville AAWD student chapter is thankful for faculty member Dr. Wendy Hupp's life-long friendship with Dr. Doniger that sparked such an exciting event to occur at ULSD and Louisville ASDA for sponsoring the event. The Louisville dental students definitely enjoyed this once in a lifetime opportunity of interacting with the AAWD president.
